

Professional Women in Building Scholarship

Individuals Seeking Professional Development, Education and Certification In Building Industry Fields of Study

ELIGIBILITY:

Applications are open to all students or professionals seeking advanced education in any field of study related to the Building Industry. Preference will be given to women. Priority will be given to students pursuing study in a housing related program such as construction management, building, construction technology, civil engineering, architecture, design or any of the trade specialties at the vocational school, college or university they attend.

Awards in the amount of $500 to $2,000 will be granted to recipients for furthering their education within our industry. The amount and number of scholarships granted will be determined by number of applicants. Students who are pursuing education towards working in our industry will also be considered.

Education could be for any industry-recognized program (OSHA, IRM, MIRM, etc.), green building programs, related industry programs (AIA, ASID, etc.), and any recognized university, college or technical school industry-related courses.

Completion of the application, required statement, and supporting documents are due June 30, 2020.
